POST TEST – ROOM CHANGE

Question: True or False?	Answer
1. The room change notice is only given to resident’s representatives.
2. The resident only has a right to refuse a room change in or out of a Medicare or Medicaid certified bed if it for staff convenience.
3. The facility is in compliance with the regulation by writing a note in the resident’s record prior to assigning a new roommate.
4. Room changes never have a negative effect on residents.
5. Residents’ families can require a room change for their loved one.
6. Room change notices are only required for Medicaid residents.
7. If the resident lives in a bed in a composite distinct part, they can only be requested to move by the facility within the same building unless they volunteer to move to another distinct part location.
8. The facility can give verbal notice of a new roommate to the resident and representative.
9. The facility must allow three days after a resident passes from a semi-private room before admitting another resident into the room.
10. The facility can place residents together according to their pay source and offer a lower level of care and services based on how much the facility is paid.
