Overview

Senior Housing, Assisted Living, CCRCs, and skilled nursing facilities have been on the front line of the pandemic fight. As communities fight through the second wave, the risk of significant legal liability for all organizations is the next challenge over the horizon. This session will consider what we have learned from the cases that have been filed, including key liability theories. We will discuss liability from suits by residents and employees. As communities deal with guidance that can change on a weekly basis, it is more important than ever that communities have a clear plan for managing these risks.

Objectives

- Identify the five top risk areas that communities face from COVID-19
- Understand the key elements on which Plaintiff's lawyers are focused when filing these case
- Identify the top 5 actions that your community can take to put itself in the best position to avoid a suit or to defend itself from a suit
- Identify key government guidance documents and how each community should be following and documenting compliance
- Understand best practices for communication, screening, testing, and reporting to limit potential liability
